The Roman Empire invaded Britannia in the 1st Century A.D. and made allies and enemies of the local tribes, loosely called Britons. They maintained a controlling presence until 400 A.D., at which time the Romans left Britain, possibly to avoid having to defend against the Saxons that began to invade that part of Europe at the same time. Britons were dangerous and ruthless enemies but lacked the tactical sophistication and training that made the Romans so successful.

These 4 rubber moulds can be used many hundreds of times and can cast 2 different warriors per mould. Prince August has also provided cast versions of the regular soldiers in blister packs. The Briton leaders are only available precast, and include 2 Nobles (Wealthy lords), a Druid (Religious leaders), a Chieftain, a Standard Bearer and a Carnyx Player (used similar to a trumpet).

These are 28mm scale metal precast miniatures, and do require assembly but glue is not included. Painting guides are included. Prince August Model Acrylic Paints are ideal for painting miniatures. All metal figures should be primed beforehand.

Illustrations are for example only. All figures are unpainted or require casting.
