

The Egyptian Chess Set Moulds.

This chess set depicts two great civilisations of the middle-east, that of the Egyptians and the Assyrians. The Egyptian king and queen are the pharaoh Ramsis II and his wife, The bishops are Re, the sun god. The knights and pawns are Egyptian cavalry and light infantry respectively. The rook represents the lotus topped temple pillars. The Assyrian King and queen are Sennacherib, an eight century king who attacked the cities of Babylon and Judah, and his wife. The bishops are representations of Marduk, an Assyrian deity of thunder. The knight is an Assyrian mounted archer and the pawn is an Assyrian light infantryman, The rook is a depiction of carved winged lions that guard royal buildings.
